

Lucy

You are an ambitious professional who grew up in an immigrant family that takes pride in her achievements. You just moved to the city to start your first job, and although it's more expensive than what you're used to, you're so excited. Your family is so proud of you but they miss having you close by. You still have student loans to pay off, but that doesn't stop you from having a little bit of fun, going out and making new friends. You also just downloaded a dating app and are excited to see what fish are in the sea- you say you're having fun exploring, but deep down, you just want to find the "One."

- ✧ Get a high-paying salary job
- ✧ Become a C-suite executive
- ✧ Find the "one" (partner)
- ✧ Have children before age 35
- ✧ Be able to support parents

Lucy's Goals

Canela

You are a creative spirit who's always followed your passions. You majored in fine arts, but you're not sure what you want to do with it. You grew up with a single mom who taught you how to be independent. You've never cared much about "climbing the ladder," but lately you've been wondering if a little more stability wouldn't hurt. Most of your friends are getting married or buying homes, while you're still figuring things out. You say you're okay with that, but a voice in your head sometimes asks, "Should I be doing more?" One thing is for certain—you want to stay healthy so you can someday have two children.

Canela's Goals

✧ Get a financially stable job

✧ Prioritize health

✧ Stay close to family

✧ Have at least 2 children

✧ Be able to support her mom

Mila

You are a planner. You've had a five-year plan since college and so far, you've checked all the boxes. You love having control, and uncertainty makes you spiral. You've always wanted the perfect partner and the perfect job, but never wanted to have children. Financial stability isn't something you worry about, but people? That's where things get complicated. You've always been the "responsible one" in your family and friend group — the person everyone turns to for advice. But lately, you've been wanting to let it all go and feel more free.

Mila's Goals

✧ Go to graduate school

✧ Find a job that she loves, even at the expense of salary

✧ Find a partner she can lean on

✧ Keep everyone around her happy

✧ Unsure about having children

Phoebe

You are a laid back, free-spirited woman but with a practical side. Your mom's a registered nurse and your dad's a professor, so you grew up with a strong appreciation for education and stability. You've always loved adventure and dream of traveling the world (ideally with a partner who shares the same curiosity and free-spirited nature as you)! While you're unsure about having children, you do know that you want to find the right partner and live a life full of adventure.

- ✧ Consider Graduate School
- ✧ Travel the world
- ✧ Get a steady, well-paying job
- ✧ Find the "right" partner
- ✧ Unsure about having children

Phoebe's Goals

Riley

You're a first-generation college grad who's always felt pressure to "make it" — not just for yourself, but for your family. You're practical, grounded, and ambitious, but there's a softer side of you that dreams of opening a community wellness center someday. You've spent the last few years helping care for your family, and while you're proud of the role you've played, you're ready to put yourself first for once.

Riley's Goals

- ✧ Get a stable, high-paying job
- ✧ Support her family financially
- ✧ Maybe have children someday
- ✧ Start a passion project helping others
- ✧ Prioritize mental and physical health

Stevie

You've always wanted to be a mom, but only if it feels right and not because you're being rushed. You're ambitious and nurturing, the kind of person who meets deadlines and remembers birthdays. You want a job that aligns with your values, not just your résumé. You've always imagined a stable, long-term relationship early on, but only with someone who shares your outlook on life. You don't like being pressured — not by partners, parents, or the ticking clock. Lately, you've been wondering: Should I focus on building my career first, or find the right partner... before life gets in the way?

Stevie's Goals

- ✧ Find a stable, value-driven job
- ✧ Be in a long-term relationship
- ✧ Avoid pressures from others
- ✧ Prioritize career over health
- ✧ Potentially have children, but on own terms